and coal board representatives announced tonight a settle-ment in the miners' strike vhich began 34 days ago.

The union leaders, who had been asking an II-per-cent wage increase with an eight-per-cent raise immediately on behalf of 240,000 striking miners, settled for a 6.5-per-cent raise immediately to be fol-lowed by another six per cent over the next 12 months.

They also received a 100-franc ($20) back-to-work advance on wages, repayable later, and government accept-ance of a fourth week's paid vacation annually.

The miners originally had asked a straight 200-franc ($40) back-to-work bonus, which would not have been re-

An official spokesman said the union leaders only initial-led the agreement, which would have to be ratified by the union

The strike is estimated to have cost France about 4,000,000 working days—twice the total lost in Ffench strikes last year—and 200,000 tons of coal a day.

The settlement was expected to set the pattern for ending unrest in other nationalized industries. The 2,000,000 workers in state-owned industries claim their pay has lagged far behind that of workers in pri-

Special Steps To Aid Economy

LONDON (CP)—Sweeping tax changes, including reductions in personal income taxes and special concessions to industry, were announced today in Britain's first deficit budget since 1947.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Reginald Maudling, in a bud get dubbed the "family man's EARLY VOIE budget," called for total government spending of £6,929. RULED OUT? 000,000 ($20,787,000,000).

A deficit totalling £71,000,000 ($213,000,000) was forecast as Maudling reduced taxes by a total of about £270,000,000 ($810,000,000);

The chancellor increased per sonal income tax exemptions for all taxpayers and lowered the tax rate on all income categories—moves which to-gether freed 3,750,000 persons in jow-income brackets from paying any tax at all. In a bid to get new indus-tries to move into depressed areas of Britain, he announced special grants on plants and machinery for businesses locating in these areas and said they will be allowed to write off capital equipment at any de-preciation rate they choose, Maudling's 1963 budget also

EARLY VOTE

LONDON (CP) - First comments on the British budget, in which treasury chief Reginald Maudling announced tax cuts totalling £250,000,000 suggested a measure of disappointment

The comments came from a BBC television panel of experts.

Trade union boss Frank Cousins called it a "moder-ate" budget. He said its relatively unspectacular nature indicated there wouldn't be an early election.

A spokesman for industry criticized the lack of incentives for exporters.

Good Government

THE PEOPLE OF THIS AREA, as throughout the nation, are less concerned with political catchwords than with good government. Which party is most likely to provide it? That question more than any other will decide how most Canadians vote.

Of course the future actions of any government are incalculable but the past actions of all governments are on the public record. It is only from the past that we can hope to guess the future. The past, however, has a way of escaping from the public memory.

Almost six years ago the Diefenbaker government was elected on a promise to reduce expendi-tures, balance the budget, keep interest rates low, cure unemploy-ment, divert Canada's trade from the United States to Britain and do many other remarkable things, None of these basic promises were carried out.

The contrast between its record and that of its immediate predecesrs is worth remembering now when a choice between the Conservative and Liberal parties must be made a few days hence.

Canada was in a state of disunity, depression and confusion as the Liberal Party took office at the end of 1921. Under Prime Minister Mackenzie King it steadily recovered until the world-wide economic disaster of the thirties which was not the government's fault nor the fault of the Conservative govern-ment elected in 1930. No government in the world could master the Great Depression.

The Liberal Party returned to office in 1935. From then on it governed without interruption until 1957. That was one of the most difdangerous and successful periods in Canadian life. It included the management of the Second World War, the construction of a modern industrial economy, the transition from war to peace with hardly a ripple of disturbance and

It is nice to know, however, that someone is working on the project and that the advent of 2000 will be arsome of our local observances will be completed by that time—the centennial square and so on—and would blend in clock, nicely with the world celebration.

In thinking loosely of the world as that's quite an achievement. All the being 2,000 years old, of course, we take long "year" of development on the a lot for granted. thing to say about that—and produce a few unarguable proofs of their longev-ity. So we must add in five or six thousand years of earlier history. But even then, things didn't start off with a click, so we'll have to include a few thousand years of fairly well developed man whose relics we haven't yet stumbled

In the Beginning

And that would bring us to the less well developed folk-mentally, that is-who preceded those races. But this constitutes the merest start in the march ick to origins.

Richard Carrington put it very in his Guide to Earth History: "If we imagine the whole of earth's history compressed into a single year, then, on this scale, the first eight months would be completely without life. The following two months would be devoted to the most primitive of creatures, ranging from viruses and single-celled bacteria to jellyfish, while mammals would not appear until the second week in December. Man, as we know him, would struttonto the stage at about 11:45 PM on December 31. The age of written history would have occupied little more than the last 60 seconds on the clock."

It isn't much, is it? But that's about what they are planning to celebrate 37 years from now—our great achievement in carrying on what we call civilization for less than 30 seconds on the big quiet compared with what we, as inhabitants, could create today.

Of course there were the volcanic eruptions, the floods, the risings of mountain ranges and the sinkings of ocean floors, the earthquakes, the ice ages, the fires, the plagues—there were all these catastrophes. But they were all natural—the action of blind forces, the result of planetary shrinkage, of heatings and coolings and general con-formity with natural laws of physics.

Not until we arrived in our intel-lectual maturity, for our little 60-second act, did a new force enter the system the force of deliberately contrived hatred, the will to kill.

New Trouble

Now that the planet has this to cope with—and the force has been augmented by control of nuclear energy—its prospects are sadly dinmed. It isn't likely pects are sadly dimmed. It isn't likely we'll blow the whole globe up—all at once. But already in our preliminary fumbling we've indicated the possibilities—poisoning the surface with radioactive fallout, interfering with the rings of magnetism and electrical charges which enclose the planet, experimenting with how much of the earth's surface could be destroyed by how many pounds of explosive.

Oh yes, we've done very well. But by 2000 we should be in a better position to show our real capabilities. We might even arrange that our 60-second appearance will be followed by another of those eight-month periods when there just isn't much going on around here—sort of a breather between curtain calls.

On inquiry Mr. Holden learned that his offence consisted in the fact he had come without a visa or special permis-sion. The British Embassy in Havana later told him that neither was required, that many journalists had visited Cuba armed with nothing but their passports, and that the Cuban government for some strange reason of its own wished to make an example of him.

In spite of repeated requests Mr. Holden was told that no one could deal with his case except a mysterious fire.

with his case except a mysterious fig-ure called the Director of Immigration who never once appeared although there is reason to believe he was always near. At least twice the assistant director came into view but he refused to talk to Mr. Holden.

Mr. Holden asked permission to cable the editor of The Guardian telling him what had happened. No such cable arrived in Manchester.

How did Mr. Holden get out? Well, before leaving London, he had cabled the British Embassy giving it the date of his arrival. When he failed to appear the embassy grew suspicious and made urgent inquiries. It took the embassy three days to find out where Mr. Holden was being detained. Even then it required another day to arrange his release. Mr. Holden had tried many times but always in vain to get in touch with the British consul the moment he found himself in trouble.

Intervention

After the embassy had intervened, with increasing urgency, Mr. Holden was whisked to the airport at 6 o'clock in the morning under guard to be removed from the country on a plane going to Mexico. But things were not

Two sat close to me.

Both were young. One stott managed to convey the idea that he was a plant from a rival political party who had undertaken to make his interjections at two-to-three-minute intervals. He did. They seemed to embarrass him. In his silent moments he sat with a fixed-grin, the kind of expression salled on the face of a person who knows he's making a fool of himself but is committed.

When he couldn't summon up part of an idea to yell from his seat, he shouted "Boo." That didn't seem too intelligent a comment. I've heard cows do it better.

But if the boy seemed only half quick-witted, he was considerably ahead of the other lout, whose interruptions were almost all "boos." At one time he amounced, "I come from the Maritimes." A quiet gentle-man in the seat beside me remarked, "That scarcely seems to justify his performance, but it's probably good news to the Mari-times. They won't have to put up with him now."

The total effect of the two hecklers, If they deserve the name, was to make them-selves look extremely foolish and the speaker they were trying to heckle extreme-ly bright by comparison.

In common with most of the people around me, I just wished they'd shut up. They did, of course, have some effect on the audience. Speaking for myself, I decided that if that was the mentality of the party they appeared to belong to, it wasn't going basis of poor samples from one meeting. Perhaps the boys with the wisecracks and winnowed wisdom were better at other shows, though I have heard no report to support that supposition.

Maybe the art of heckling is dying out, or possibly it never was as good as it appeared to be when my ears were younger. We tend to remember the bright sallies, for-

We tend to remember the bright sallies, forget the dull ones of earlier years.

Moreover, the advent of the microphone has given a speaker an unfair advantage over an individual in an audience. He can usually amplify his volume to drown out the remarks that come from the crowd.

There are places, though, where the technique of heckling still flourishes—along with other ludicrous audience participation stunts—and probably nowhere better than at Hyde Park Corner.

* * There I have heard what must be the ultimate in its own form of nonsense—a man standing in the crowd before a soapboxer and delivering, word perfect and one sentence in advance, the complete spiel of the man on the soap-box. There, too, I have enjoyed the sharp interchange between peaker and heckler that has turned a warm summer evening merry.

Sometimes audience non-participation can be almost as funny. The case is on record in Victoria of the local politician who droned through most of his speech and then began to glance anxiously up from his text to survey the crowd. He'd mumble a few phrases and then raise his eyes to survey the assembly, apparently looking for some-

Finally he reached a desperate pass and made a confession. "At this point," he ex-plained, "someone was to come in and ask me a question. He hasn't come, so I'll ask it myself." His clinching point somehow was lost in the laughter.

All this makes good political fun—fun that seems to have fallen away in the extreme seriousness of our national affairs today. But things are going to become a great deal more serious still if we lose, even in such circumstances, the ability to laugh. Today's so-called hecklers aren't doing much to stimulate that ability. to stimulate that ability.

It's getting to the point where a man seldom sees anything funny except when

Borstal Is Dearer Than Eton

LONDON-At random . . . This city's 11 mainline railway stations are not noted for being attractive to look upon. But a big new Euston is at least going to make that one less of an eyesore.

The huge, useless stone archivay blocking rather than giving access to the station entrance has already been removed to make way for new con-struction. Now final plans for modern office blocks are being okayed by the London County Council.

buildings won't hem the station in behind concrete. The overall plan calls for pleasant terraces and piazzas, open-air cafes and bars to be incorporated in among the buildings. This scheme is a welcome one. Anything that will help to give the Euston Road a face-lift is a good thing as any of you who know London will agree. This road, running from Recent's Park past Euston and St. from Regent's Park past Euston and St. Pancras Stations to King's Cross Station, is one of the dreariest parts of downtown Lon-

STATUS SYMBOL: A man who was at Borstal (reform school) can now claim that it's more expensive to be there than at Eton. Latest figures issued on the cost of Britain's prisons (where currently one of every 2,000 of the population is incarcerated) show that it costs $2,182 a year to keep a boy at Borstal. Annual fees at Eton: $1,470.

'Lost Our Bounce,' Says Irate Pilous

SPORTS DIARY

By JIMMY CANNON

SARASOTA, Fla. — The yearning to be remembered has haunted man in all his ages on earth. The obscure are only noticed in the tombstone's brief literature. Men call their sons after themselves to cross the boundary of another generation. The Pharoaha built their own immense monuments. Modern politicians name streets and airports after themselves to be certain people will know their valsted. will know they existed. The ball player finds toy mmortality in record books, some pretend with an unbelieved cynicism that they are not moved by the designations of the permanent ledgers of their sport. It has become popular for players to demean their own thrilling achievements. Pitchers, after losing a no hit game in the ninth inning, claim it doesn't matter. They never convince anyone. I wonder

The candor of Early Wynn must be respected. This is a ball player, as they should be, but seldom are. He wants just one more ball game, and that will put him in the guides. He has appeared in the box score 299 times as a winning pitcher but he must pass the frontier of 300 before the archivists acknowledge his accomplishment. The real fame archivists acknowledge his accomplishment. The real fame of a ball player is told in arithmetic.

This isn't a matter of money. In Venice, Fla., Wynn runs a lucrative construction business, a cafe and bowling alley. He is assembling a syndicate to publish a newspaper in the town. It is a simple proposition. He has done his work well and wants it appreciated.

He wanted to continue wearing the White Sox uniform but now, contractless and adrift, Wynn belongs to no test in for the first time since he induced Sanford in the Florida.

for the first time since he joined Sanford in the Florida Leegue. Chicago was through with him after last season, which was his 22nd in the big leagues, but he has been trying this spring to convince manager Al Lopez he can still Innction as a major leaguer.

Now Early must look elsewhere for employment. Despite his excellent showing this spring-limiting the op-position to one run and four hits in 13 innings-he was told Tuesday the Sox have decided to go with their young

He may have to look only as far as the St. Louis Cardinals, whose manager, Marty Marion, watched him blank Cincinnati Tuesday in a four-inning stint, giving up

"I definitely am going to recommend that the Cardinals sign him," said Marion. "He looks fine to me."

Early Could Be Last to Win 300

Other pitchers have won 300 games before Wynn. But he believes no one will ever do it again.

"I just had to come back to get 300 or over," Wynn explained after Tuesday's effort. "Under the present conditions, I'll be the last to win 300. Relief pitchers . . . the live ball . . make it practically impossible."

Sweat ran in gleaming rills down his dark face as he sat in the club house, drinking a cup of creamed soup out of a paper cup, an alien in the country of youth.

"Baseball's still fun," Wynn said. "I still like to work out. It gets to be hard work after a certain number of hours each day. But I've brainwashed myself into thinking it's not a hard task. You have to have a lot of heart-to-heart talks with yourself to stand spring training at my age."

The game holds him as though he were starting all over again.

"I guess it's the competitiveness of it," Wynn said. "I still like to strike out a guy or make him hit into a double play. It's no longer brute force now, throwing the ball by the hitter. It's got to be some sort of thing between a hitter and myself. I enjoy that."

He is under the same scrutiny and subjected to the doubts applied to the minor leaguers young enough to be his sons.

"I can't regret anything I ever did as a ball player," Wynn said. "I like to play baseball and I like to pitch. But I'd like to play 3 or 4 days a week. I played shortstop in the pines . . . one in the morning . . . one i one in the afternoon, and metimes a night game. I liked that."

All Wynn Wants Is a Line of Type

Time changed him from the pitcher he was when he came to the American League in '41.

"In those days I tried to get two quick strikes on a guy and then throw him a knuckle ball," Wynn said. "But I got the good curve, and then it didn't matter if I got ahead of him. I'd make him fish. I'd be 3 and 1 or 2 and 0 and not be concerned. Then I had confidence in my control which I didn't when I came up."

stopped using the knuckle ball because it split one of his fingers.

"I used to throw it off the finger tips instead of the knuckles," he said. "I'd be sore every time I started. But knuckles," he said. "I'd be sore every time I started. But it still was a good pitch because the hitters were always

It Looks Easy As Red Wings Square Series

DETROIT (CP) - Chicago Black Hawks and De-troit Red Wings are a couple of homers. That's one conclusion to be drawn from the four games played to date in their best-ofseven Stanley Cup semifinal.

Coach Rudy Pilous had a few more explosive things to say about his Hawks. They came here with a two-game bulge after 5-4 and 5-2 victories in Chicago. But the Wings walloped them 4-2 and then Tues-day night made it look easy with a 4-1 decision that squared the

There was a "no return' marked alongside Nellson's name on scorer Laurie Carroll's master card. A check of the individual score cards on Tuesday, however, showed that Neilson's card, signed by A. H. Osman, had been turned in.

It is believed that Neilson's card was placed, unnoticed by Carroll, with the pile of cards that had been checked off.

A Victoria and District Golf Committee ruling put Neilson in. A draw was made Tuesday to eliminate one man from the 10 golfers who scored net 73s-the last qualifying score.

In former years these statements were handled by hand and it was a physically impossible job to match every item of income with the appropriate return.

Now the computer at Ottawa sorts and checks this vast mass of documentation electroni-cally. And if a taxpayer in Victoria fails, for example, to show a $20 dividend payment received from Nova Scotia, the computer will pick up this

The rejected return would eventually land on the desk of a taxpayer here in Victoria. And then the real investigation would start,

Theoretically a taxpayer could pay taxes all his life and never come under the special scrutiny of the department. But men like Mr. Wesn and chief tax assessor B. Jenkins like to think that sooner or later their sys-tem of cross-checks will fasten on every taxpayer.

Every year this checking discloses about $100,000,000 that Canadians owe in taxes on undeclared income. It costs the government about 80 cents to scover and collect each $100 of this tax.

It's Interesting

Not everyone cheats on in-come tax but anyone is likely to. It makes the life of a tax assessor both interesting and difficult. Jenkins says many people don't consider cheating on taxes is illegal. "It's like overparking at a meter. If you can get away with it that's well and good, they think," How exactly do tax asses-

Concealing dividend income or bond interest is another means of avoiding taxes. This will become outdated with the new computer.

Fill In Form

When a bond coupon is cashed at a bank, the person making the transaction has to fill in a form which goes straight to the income tax department and, from now on, is "fed" into the computer.

The most radical way to avoid taxes is not to file an income tax return at all. Small

This year the income tax department has a new mechanical aid that is going to make it difficult for anyone who tries to cheat on taxes.

In fact C. E. Wesson, tax director for Vancouver Island, thinks it will make it almost impossible for anyone to get away-with anything.

NOT FATIGUED

He insisted however, thet he was not getting fatigued by the campaign, declaring that "I feel better today than when I started because I have had the opportunity to place before the people the issues and present our plan for the future."

In an afternoon meeting at Delormier stadium in Mont-eral, he spoke-with an evan-glical fervor, antacking the press, American inberference and Liberal nuclear policy.

At a luncheon in Vaudreuil he blasted Quebec Premier Le-sage for his decision to bring out a provincial budget Friday, three days before the federal election.

He rejected what he called the Liberal policy of arming the Bomare missiles with nuclear weapons by asking—"Are they going to make Canada a burnt sacrifice?"

In criticizing Mr. Lesage, Mr. Diefenbaker said the federal government would have no opportunity to answer the Lesage budget prior to the election.

"He wants a larger share of tax revenue," said Mr. Diefenbaker, "They say they want to go back to something they had."

The prime minister accused

The prime minister accused the Liberals of importing from Ontario leadership to Quebec, an apparent reference to Lionel Chevrier, former Liberal cabinet minister and MP from Montreal.

The most amazing thing about the campaign, said Mr. Diefenbaker, is "the way Canadians are receiving advice on how to vote from magazines brought from outside the country."

RIGHT ON DEFENCE

Mr. Diefen baker declared

Mr. Diefen baker declared that his government was "right" on defence policy.

you it doesn't matter very much who is against you. "Don't read the editorials," he sald. "If you want to find the state of economy look on inside pages and if you want the facts look on the front page."

"As prime minister, I know what goes on, and there was never at any time, under any circumstances, any commit-ment to equip these Bomarcs with nuclear warheads.

"I have the responsibility and I will do everything in my power to maintain Canada's defences. But I will not spend millions of dollars on some-thing that is no defence. No one was ever condemned more, condemned within the party and without.

SOVIET TARGETS

He said Bomarc missiles would be used as targets for Soviet ICBMs.

"Some newspapers say that Canada must make sacrifices," he said.
"What is the use of making sacrifices for something no longer effective? What happens to you?

Diary Found Here Linked to Byron

A diary linked with the life of famous English poet Lord Byron has been discovered in a Victoria attic.

John Thompson, a third-year student at Victoria College, found the 150-year-old book in the attic of the home

It is being investigated by Prof. Grant McOrmond of the college, to determine whether or not the book was actually written by the person whose name appears on the inside cover — Augusta Leigh, Byron's half-sister.

For French Stylists

This really is quite revolutionary when you consider that there are more than one and a half billion zippers marketed in one year in North America. In Canada alone, the garment industry uses about 125,003,000 fasteners of various types, mostly zippers.

Being only half the width of the conventional zipper, it is much easier to conceal—no more gaping zipper closings down the middle of your back. It is so flexible that it can be ited and untied and still come out unharmed. An unconditional guarantee assures you of this fact.

Zippers can be laundered or dry cleaned but, remember; it is nylon and must NOT be pressed with a hot Iron—use either a cool iron or a pressing cloth.

Oh! Just think how simple life is going to be without loss of skin or garment.

And one more thing it eliminates is rust marks left by corroded zippers.

And one more than 100 shades being made.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

I recently wrote about tall and men lose inches from gals or women who are quite table than the gverage sheight for the fair sex. Today, I want to give a lift to those women and girls who are shorter than average.

Beautiful posture is just as important to them as to taller women. By standing straight.

The way a woman dresses and fixes her hair also makes a big difference in how tall or short she appears to others. The short woman should avoid stripes which go round and wide belts or belts of a contrasting color to her dress. Long, unbroken princess lines make you look taller, women. By standing straight. Large prints are over-power-ing. Hair should be worn high on the head unless this style is unbecoming.

making the export market even more attractive. In consumer terms, using the year 1960 for comparison, there was roughly 10% less beef to buy in Canada in early 1962 and 20% less by late 1962.

The Why's of Meat Prices

There now seem to be signs pork prices were high for the that the price of beef, high for some time, is beginning to move down. To understand what is happening, we have to go back to 1961 when severe drought in western Canada resulted in short feed supply, and a rise in feed grain prices is at in g through early 1962. This meant that fewer steers were put on feed lots to be fattened, and led to a drop in the number of cattle on the market in 1962. At that time the United States had just recovered from a drought, so their beef was in short supply and their market drained off a larger supply than usual from Canada. Beef continued for Canada. Beef continued to move south through 1962, the devaluation of the dollar making the export market

Speaking to 20 persons in New Royal Parish Hall, Robert Ostler said the Liberal party realized something must be done for the municipalities."

Himself a Saanich councillor, he said municipalities are "in direct competition" with one another and the provinces for federal loans. Many, fall-ing to get satisfactory aid, are forced to turn to the U.S.

"We have done so in Saan-ich," Mr. Ostler said.

He also called for a lowrowing from Ottawa. "So long as it costs so much for municipalities to borrow, so long will the homeowner continue to pay higher taxes," he said. "The cost of borrowing directly reflects on local taxation.'

CALGARY (CP) — Despite a disagreement with the prime minister over nucle ar arms which led to his resignation as defence minister, Douglas Harkness is the Progressive Conservative candidate for re-election in Calgary North. His opponents have tunnted him about his unusual position.

Mr. Harkness announced his resignation Feb. 4, the day before the government fell. He said the government fell. He said the government had a commitment to provide nuclear warheads to Canadian forces. The prime minister disagreed.

Supporters ignored the breach and he was unopposed for nommation in the urban riding be has held since 1945. Campaign advisers have billed him as a "man of principle."

What does it mean to you?

If you answer "The Canadian Press", you're right. (CP) is the logotype or "slug" that identifies many stories in your daily newspaper, right after the place-line at the start. Yet, few people know that The Canadian Press is a non-profit association of Canada's daily newspapers, gathering and distributing the world's news for them.

CP exchanges among Canadian newspapers the district news they collect and covers major Canadian news with its own reporters. CP brings to Canadian newspapers the news of the world from the two great agencies, Associated Press (AP) and Reuters, from CP bureaus at London, New York and Washington and from CP reporters assigned to Canadian-interest news anywhere.

To move the news across Canada as it happensand news photos, too-The Canadian Press uses 35,000 miles of wires. This is how your daily newspaper provides you with complete news coverage ... in depth.

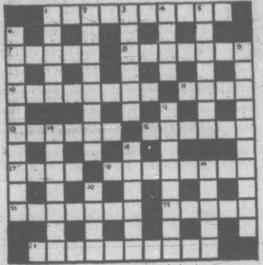

This is why you can depend on your daily newspaper for all the news . . . every day. Keep informed through your daily newspaper. It's timely.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to David Skinner, age 13, of Allentown, Pa., for his question: How Does the Milky Way Revolve?

On a clear night, the Milky Way Revolve?

On a clear night, the Milky Way arches over the heavens like a wispy haze. We are only just beginning to learn that the beautiful ghostly glimmer is far more wonderful than it appears to be. We must stretch our minds to grasp its tremendous size and exercise our imaginations to realize the orderly system of its billions of stars.

The vast system of stars we call the Milky Way rotates the hub, where the stars are its billions of stars.

The vast system of stars we call the Milky Way rotates around its axis somewhat like a monstrous pinwheel. In order to imagine its rotation, we must have an idea of its shape and allocate it some directions to know which way it is turning. Our earth, of course, is part of the whirling system, and every star, every speck of debris in the Milky Way is halfway becked to the copic photographs of sections wheel of stars.

It is the Big Wheel is thickest at the hub, where the stars are most dense. This is where we start to give directions to the starry system. We imagine a line from top to bottom through the hub of the Milky Way. This is the axis around which it rotates, and we place the poles one at each end of the axis. The equator of the Milky Way is halfway between the two poles, around the wide rim of the spinning wheel of stars.

and coal board representatives announced tonight a settle-ment in the miners' strike which began 34 days ago.

The union leaders, who had been asking an 11 per cent wage increase with an eightper-cent raise immediately on behalf of 240,000 striking minsettled for a 6.5-per-cent se immediately to be followed by another six per cent over the next 12 months.

They also received a 100-franc ($20) back-to-work advance on wages, repayable later, and government acceptance of a fourth week's paid vacation annually.

The miners originally had sked a straight 200-franc ($40) back-to-work bonus.

An official spokesman said the union leaders only initial-led the agreement, which would have to be ratified by the union embership. The strike is estimated to have cost France about 4,000,-000 working days — twice the total lost in French strikes last year—and 200,000 tons of

A diary linked with the life of famous English poet Lord Byron has been discovered in a Victoria attic.

John Thompson, a third-year student at Victoria College, found the 150-year-old-book in the attic of the home of his grandfather, Maj. H. C. Holmes, 336 Newport,

It is being investigated by Prof. Grant McOrmond of the college, to determine whether or not the book was actually written by the person whose name appears on the inside cover — Augusta Leigh, Byron's half-sister.

Mr. Poskitt says he objects most strenuously to accounts which would have our readers believe that Campbell River has no sea monster at all, and has to be content with occasional visits from Caddy.

"Few communities in the world have their very own monster, and Campbell River is one of them," says Mr. Poskitt. "He is friendly of face, and brings good luck to all who see him."

The name of Campbell River's monster is Klame saurus, which is even harder to spell than Cadboroetc. But Mr. Poskitt defends this name on the grounds the monster has owned it for 200 years.

"His history can be authenticated in Indian legends going back that far." Mr. Poskitt avers. "He has been sighted many times since the turn of the century. Recent sightings in the past year lend credence to the belief he is "Not only has much research and documentation gone into records which prove beyond a doubt the existence of Campbell River's monster, but his official name was approved by the department of recreation and conservation

"So I appeal to the Times' sense of honesty and fair play, to come right out in print and admit that Campbell River has a sea monster of its own, friendly, frolicky, handsome Klamahtosaurus."

Oh, all right, Mr. Poskitt. How can we resist such an assigned plea?

Industry

LONDON (CP) - Sweeping tax changes, including reductions in personal inreductions in personal in-come taxes and special con-cessions to industry, were announced today in Brit-ain's first deficit budget since 1947.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Reginald Maudling, in a bud-get dubbed the "family man's budget," called for total gov-ernment spending of £6,929, 000,000 ($20,787,000,000).

A deficit totalling £71,000,000 ($213,000,000) was forecast as Maudling reduced taxes by a total of about £270,000,000 ($810,000,000),

The chancellor increased personal income tax exemptions for all taxpayers and lowered the tax rate on all, income categories—moves which together freed 3,750,000 persons in low-income brackets from paying any tax at all.

In a bid to get new industries to move into depressed areas of Britain, he announced special grants on plants and areas of Britain, he announced special grants on plants and machinery for businesses locating in these areas and said they will be allowed to write off capital equipment at any depreciation rate they choose. Mauding's 1963 budget also abolishes the unpopular special property tax on owner - occupiers of houses and increases the tax exemption in death du-

Higher-paid wage earners got little—a tax reduction of about £6 ($18) for a single man earning £5,000 ($15,000) a year. His total income tax bill now will be £1,427 ($4,381).

EXAMPLES

Maudling cited these examples of tax reductions under the £840—the national average—annually:

EDMONTON (CP) — Social Credit Leader Thompson is a single man will pay £5 11 shillings less and have a total income tare the servative government Tuesday night with flouting the rights of Parliament.
